"I reckon a man ought to be his own judge as to whether he is old enough for a step of that kind," Bob said, with sudden dignity. "It began this way. There was three schoolmates at Mrs. Styles' school and they all seemed bent on seeing which one could make me like 'em the most. They was all pretty enough in 'sharp enough, and I reckon it was just human nature for me to carry on with 'em a little. I don't know as I liked one better than another at first. It was just the fun of seeing 'em wrangle." Bob laughed out impulsively. "They pretended to be as thick as molasses in the winter, but they hated one another like snakes. Then they got to telling lies on each other. I knew they were lies because I caught up with 'em. Finally I saw that Dora May—"

"Do you mean Mrs. Hanks?" asked Kenner, with mock solemnity. "Yes, my wife," replied Bob. "As I say, I finally saw she was just the girl I was looking for, and I made up my mind to get married and be done with it. Thinking about her and trying to see her took up too much time. I told her my folks would object to it, but she advised me to go ahead. She's as independent as a hog on ice, an' she can afford to be." Bob paused for a moment, twirling his fingers between his knees, and then he went on: "I reckon I'll have to tell you all something. I don't know as I'd tell it now, but father is raisin' such a row over my marryin' that it puts me in a bad light and hurts my business. My credit won't be worth shucks if it gets out that my daddy has gone clean back on me—that is, until they know about my wife's connections. The truth is, Dora May's got plenty of money."

"Money?" echoed Kenner and Hillyer in a breath.

"That's what I said," answered Bob calmly.

"Then you married her for that," said Kenner sternly.

"No, I didn't," replied Bob. "The truth is, I liked her before I knew about it. She suits me tiptop, and I can't help it if she is well off. She's what would be called big rich in this part of the country. Her father left her several blocks of business houses in Louisville. The rent on one batch alone is something over five thousand a year and will all come to her when she's of age. Her guardian didn't think it would be best for it to get out down here before she was done school, an' so he got Mrs. Styles not to mention it an' made Dora May promise not to tell it. But, of course, when me an' her got engaged, and—"

"You let a gal in short frocks tell you a cock an' bull story like that," broke in Hanks, his sallow face working visibly, "an' you swallowed it, like the sucker you are."

"I had no reason to doubt it," retorted Bob, with a flash. "But I found out afterward that it was all true. I know a tobacco drummer from up that way. He gets all my trade in that line. Me an' him are pretty friendly, an' I confided in him. He told me he knew all about the family and substantiated everything Dora May had said an'—"

"There ain't a bit of harm in a fellow marryin' money."

tell you she's just what I was looking for. She's pretty, not a bit lazy and thinks that what I don't know ain't worth learning. She's been so much interested lately in my business that she wasn't studying good at school anyway. She's give me a great many pointers, I tell you. She helped me write all them ads. that folks said was so good, especially them with the poetry in 'em. I'm a bad speller, and she corrected all of 'em before they was printed."

"Did you ever?" Kenner said when Bob had gone. "I'll swear I don't know whether to kick or congratulate 'im."

As George was going home to dinner he saw old Hanks leaning on the fence of a vacant lot waiting for him. George paused. "That ground ud make good turnips," said Hanks, spitting over the fence. "I believe I'll make Trotter an offer for it. I could pasture my cow on it in the spring."

George said nothing. He knew the old man had waited for him to speak of Bob's marriage.

"Went up thar to see Mrs. Styles," Hanks nodded in the direction of the schoolhouse.

"Oh, you did?"

"Yes. Found 'er with 'er head all tied up in rags an' smellin' like a drug store. At first she kept up such a screechin' she wouldn't let me say a word, but she quieted down after awhile, an' me 'n' her sorter come to a understandin'."

"An understandin'? That's good," said George.

"Yes. We both sorter come to the conclusion that if she'd write to that guardian that Bob was an only child an' could naturally expect something at my demise that, maybe, he would not raise a row."

"Then the girl really is rich," said George.

The old man spat over the fence again. He avoided George's glance. "Yes, she's pretty well heeled," he said, "an' not a fool by a long shot. She was up at Mrs. Styles' this mornin', the old lady said, with a long dress on. She talked pretty straight—didn't intend to have nobody meddlin' with her affairs—of anybody had anything to say agin Bob Hanks to send 'em to her, an' so on. Blamed if I ain't sorter curio to see 'er. Somehow I always wanted a gal in the family, an' one with plenty of seeds is about as acceptable as any other sort—safer in the long run."

"When Mrs. Hillyer was told at the dinner table that day of the outcome of Bob's marriage, she said: 'Well, I don't know as Bob Hanks is such a hard case after all. The highest in the land is a-doin' jest what he done—marryin' with their eyes open. The only difference is Bob don't make no bones over it. He admits he's struck a good thing an' has too much business pride to understate his investment.'"

"Nevertheless, Martha," said Hillyer over his poised coffee cup, "I'd a little rather see Bob make more over the girl than he does."

"Oh, I don't know why the boy should go about 'fore that gang down thar with his feelin's on exhibition, an' even of it's just a cut an' dried business deal on his part it will end a slight better, I bound you, than a lot of slobberin' love affairs that run dry a month after the knot's tied. But I don't somehow think Bob an' his gal will end up bad. Thar's a sunny, cheerful way o' lookin' out for yourself, an' them two young uns may jest laugh their way into happiness an' tote it with 'em through a long, successful life. I hope so. I don't begrudge 'em anything they've got or may accumulate. I met that gal once at the school exhibition an' tuck a likin' to her. She looks like she's been well raised. I dropped my handkerchief, and she scrambled to pick it up, an' when I said, 'Thank you,' she said, 'You're welcome, ma'am,' an' didn't giggle like some do when they say anything unusual."

A NOTE OF WARNING

Britons Remind Russia of an Incident of Our Civil War.

A MATTER OF HISTORY

The Part Russia Then Took in Enforcing Armed Neutrality May Be Turned Against Her.

A Precedent of That Period Is Applied With Pertinence to Present Instance.

Chafcoo, Aug. 23.—According to Chinese reports, the Japanese yesterday bombarded Port Arthur from 6 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, pouring in a heavy fire, but that the Russians succeeded in silencing the Japanese batteries.

Liao Yang, August 23.—Japanese troops in considerable force are concentrating on the southern front of the Russian army and there is continual skirmishing, but no immediate prospect of a big battle.

London, Aug. 23.—The news that the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk is again stopping British vessels leads the London newspapers to question the value of the assurances which Premier Balfour announced had been given by the Russian government, that the St. Petersburg and the Smolensk would no longer be utilized as cruisers.

According to dispatches from Durban, Natal, the Smolensk was supposed to be watching for the British steamer Ormley, which left New York on July 9, bound for Fusan with a cargo of railway material. The Ormley left Durban Aug. 20, just before the steamer Comedian was stopped, and so escaped.

All the morning papers make editorial comments on the incident. The Standard says: "Russia has only to remember the part she took together with the other northern powers in forming an armed neutrality during the American war for independence to find a leading example of the resistance offered to a neutral whose trade is insufferably molested by a naval belligerent. Russia cannot really wish to drive Great Britain and the United States into contemplating this supreme method of forcibly checking the harassing operations of her cruisers; yet by treating food and railway material as contraband of war she is leading them to believe that milder measures will not suffice."

Most of the other journals are content with urging the necessity for the publication of official documents to show exactly what arrangement had been made with Russia.

Will Keep Out of Tangle.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Consul General Goodnow cables the state department that in the conference of foreign consuls at Shanghai, after a good deal of discussion, no solution was offered for the present condition of affairs, and it was suggested that each consul report directly to his own government asking what should be done, if anything. Mr. Goodnow had no suggestions to offer to the state department. He has been given instructions which it is believed will prevent the United States being entangled in the settlement of the question of China's neutrality at Shanghai.

A Matter of Wonder.

Liao Yang, Aug. 23.—With each additional report from Port Arthur wonder increases both at the persistence of the Japanese attack and the heroic stubbornness of the defenders of the fortress. The Japanese are literally throwing away thousands of lives in the hope of shaking the courage of the Russian troops. Major General Fock says he is confident the fortress cannot be taken, but that if it is taken the whole Japanese army will have to imitate itself on the slopes of the fortifications.

Repairs Proceeding Rapidly.

Vladivostok, Aug. 23.—Repairs to the cruisers Russia and Groboi are proceeding rapidly. It is believed it will be possible to complete them without docking the vessels and that they will therefore take a comparatively short time. There is a big reserve of naval guns here all ready for installation and officers and men have been already chosen from the Siberian reserves to fill up the places of those who were killed or wounded in the fight with Vice Admiral Kamimura's squadron.

Russians Hoped Differently.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The news that the navy department at Washington absolutely denied that the United States warships at Shanghai had received instructions to assist in the protection of the neutrality of China or to in any way interfere with the Japanese warships, put something of a damper on the feeling of satisfaction with which the earlier reports had been received.

New World's Record.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 23.—Earl Kaler broke the world's automobile mile record at the Glenville track, making the last mile of a five-mile race in 54 seconds.

GALVESTON'S SEA WALL

One of the World's Greatest Engineering Feats.

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 23.—The completion of the Galveston sea wall, the greatest structure of its kind in the world, was celebrated by running excursions from different parts of the state to Galveston. Governor Lanham was present and made an eulogistic address, commenting on the remarkable work which has been accomplished here. The sea wall represents one of the finest pieces of engineering work of any kind ever accomplished in America. The wall is 17,593 feet long, 16 feet wide at the base, 5 feet wide at the top, and stands 17 feet above mean low tide with a granite rip-rap apron extending 27 feet out on the gulf side. The contract price of the wall was $1,198,318. The actual construction of the wall proper consumed one year, four months and seventeen days.

The grade of the city is now to be raised to slope gradually from the top of the sea wall. This will necessitate a raising of the grade from one to fifteen feet, according to location. For this purpose the state of Texas has donated all state taxes collected in Galveston county for a period of eighteen years.

Altoona, Penn., Aug. 23.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has made the most sweeping reduction in the time of the men employed that has taken place since the panic of 1893. The employees of the machine shops, commencing with this morning, were divided into shifts, each shift to work every other day, eight hours to constitute a day's work.

Union Ignored in New York.

New York, Aug. 23.—The local beef packing houses, through Frederick Joseph, vice president of the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company, have declared their independence of union labor. Mr. Joseph said: "We are going ahead on an open shop basis and will pay no more attention to the unions which have struck."

Bit Off His Tongue.

Plymouth, Ind., Aug. 23.—August Kocinski, an old resident of this city, fell from the top of a stairway in a business room, receiving injuries that will prove fatal. He lost his balance, falling to the basement, forty feet below. His head struck a stone, rendering him unconscious and causing him to bite off his tongue.

Sentry Meant Business.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Private Costello of Company I, Ninth infantry, threw a quantity of pepper in a sentry's eyes at the post and attempted to escape. The sentry fired, the bullet taking effect in the back. Costello will die.

Took to Their Cellars.

Fennimore, Wis., Aug. 23.—A tornado that struck here did damage amounting to $50,000 to buildings in and around this city. The residents of the city all took to their cellars when the tornado approached.

THE FURY OF A MOB

Not Content With Killing Its Victim Body Is Burned at Stake.

GEORGIA AT IT AGAIN

Negro Ravisher Run Down by Bloodhounds Is Riddled by Bullets and His Body Cremated.

The People of Cedartown Are Not Content to Let Law Take Its Course.

Cedartown, Ga., Aug. 23.—Jim Glover, a negro was shot to death last night near the home of the white girl he had assaulted, and his body was then dragged a distance of about a mile into this city and burned at the stake on the public square. A mob estimated at 500 composed the shooting and burning party.

The crime for which the negro was thus punished was that of committing criminal assault upon little Levia Reeves, the thirteen-year-old daughter of a farmer.

The true story of the crime is the most revolting that had ever been given to the public from this immediate section of the country. After the little girl had protected the negro from the attack of a large dog owned by her father, he followed her to the pasture, where she was taking a cow, and criminally assaulted her. This occurred early in the morning.

Bloodhounds were put on the negro's track and he was caught some distance away late in the afternoon and carried to the home of the girl, who unhesitatingly identified him as her assailant.

In the meantime a crowd of 500 persons had gathered. The negro confessed his guilt. Immediately the crowd took him away from the posse which had captured him and his body was riddled with bullets.

The crowd continued to gather, and when the march back to town with the dead body in tow began it appeared as if 1,000 persons had joined the procession. By the time the crowd reached Cedartown several hundred more had been added. About 2,000 persons witnessed the burning as best they could in the bright moonlight on the most conspicuous place on Main street. The town is in a fever of excitement, but it is thought no trouble will follow.

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Cordelia Botkin has been sentenced by Superior Judge Carroll Cook to life imprisonment in the state prison. San Quentin for the murder of Mrs. John H. In passing sentence Judge Cook expressed regret that he could not impose the death penalty, as the jury in its verdict had fixed the punishment. Mrs. Botkin received the sentence without evidence of emotion.

WELCOME THE ISSUE

Indiana Republicans Prepared to Discuss the Race Question.

Indianapolis, Aug. 23.—Republican leaders here are pretty well pleased with the present indications that the Democrats are preparing to make a campaign issue of the negro question this year. The interview of Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson in the local Democratic organ here recently indicates that the Southern Democrats intend to talk against the negroes because of the fact that President Roosevelt has shown a disposition to deal fairly with them. Republican politicians welcome a fight on such lines. They know the feeling in this state on the question and understand that the Democrats will gain few votes from any source by abusing the colored man. Moreover, the announcement of such a policy is certain to injure the Democrats greatly right here at home. It is known that Chairman Taggart has decided to make a great effort to line up the negroes in this fight. Taggart always has had a great deal of influence over the negroes. He is planning to exert this influence and, backed by the money he hopes to control as national chairman, he has counted on winning them to his side. Now that the Democratic talkers, however, have started a campaign against colored men, it is not likely that Taggart will be able to do much with them if he ever had a chance, and Republicans are quietly laughing at the way his plans have been upset by men of his own party.

Indianapolis just now is entertaining two former citizens who have been away for years and who have won fair names for themselves in faraway lands. The two stranger citizens are Lee Nixon and Robert A. Mansfield. Mr. Nixon formerly was city clerk of Indianapolis. He left here five years ago and has since then been assistant postmaster at San Juan, Porto Rico, under Walter Landis, postmaster at that point, who is also a native Indiana citizen. In the five years that Mr. Nixon has been away from Indianapolis there have been many changes made, and he took great delight on his arrival here in noting these alterations, all for the city's good. Robert A. Mansfield is even better known than is Mr. Nixon. He is the present United States consul to Valparaiso, Chili, and has held other important positions in the government service. There is hardly a better known man in Indiana than "Bob" Mansfield, and within an hour after his arrival here yesterday he was renewing acquaintances on every hand. While Mr. Mansfield is not a native of this city, he has spent so much of his life here at various times that he feels almost as if it were his home. He has a sixty-day leave of absence from duty, and when it was granted he lost no time in heading this way, arriving only yesterday.

Indianapolis people who chanced to be at the union station Sunday morning saw a sight which made them inquire if after all members of the human race are really more fortunate than all dumb brutes. The sight that called forth the comment was that of five carloads of blooded horses which were being shipped to the St. Louis exposition with much more pains having been taken to see that they should be comfortable than has been noted about any of the regular or special trains carrying people through to the great show. The cars in which the animals traveled were arranged with every convenience imaginable. Each noble animal had a thickly padded cell for its own use. Food that had been prepared with the greatest care was carried in each car for the horses to eat. In fact, the animal cars were much more carefully constructed than most of the passenger cars that go through the city, and employees at the station who remember some of the excursion trains that have gone through could not help asking themselves the question if indeed their lot is far ahead of that of animals as they are wont to imagine.

The state board of charities proposes to make one recommendation to the coming legislature which it is believed will secure careful attention from the lawmakers. This is to present a bill making wife desertion a felony. The statistics of the state which the board has compiled show an alarming increase in the number of deserted wives. The fact that most of these unfortunate women are left with children on their hands to support makes the matter all the more alarming. One remedy proposed to put an end to the practice many men have dropped into of deserting their wives is to make the penalty for doing so severe enough to make a recreant husband think twice before he deserts. The matter will be thoroughly discussed at the meeting of the board to be held in Terre Haute in November, and a bill drafted along what is then decided to be the best lines.

Forest Fires Raging.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 23.—The up-coast forest fires which have been burning for the past three days are still raging. Men and women are fighting the fires in every direction.

Widow Fatally Burned.

Elkhart, Ind., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Frederick Stranz, widow, fifty-seven years old, was fatally burned by an explosion of gasoline, which she was attempting to mix with wash water.

Lost His Footing.

Wahash, Ind., Aug. 23.—Bert Harper, of Columbus, O., while trying to board a moving passenger train, lost his footing and fell under the wheels. One leg was severed. He died.

THOS. E. JOHNSON, a prominent Indianapolis lawyer, and for years an influential democrat, comes out publicly and says he cannot support Parker and Davis, who were foisted on the democratic party by Wall street trust interests. Mr. Johnson was a delegate to the democratic national convention in 1872 and has been a vigorous worker for the party ever since, but he can't go it this year.
RECENTLY Olaf Eidem was nominated for attorney general of South Dakota by the democratic convention of that state. On August 15 he mailed a letter to the democratic state chairman declining the nomination. In his letter he says:
"I have for the past year, on numerous occasions, expressed my convictions that if a democrat of the Cleveland stripe were nominated by the national convention, I should not hesitate to support Theodore Roosevelt, and I find nothing in the platform or resolutions passed by the national or state convention to change my opinion; and, therefore, I cannot allow my name to remain on the ticket of a convention that without reserve indorses the Parker and Davis democracy."

MET AFTER YEARS
Brothers Estranged in Their Youth Have Happy Reunion.
Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 23.—Two brothers, one of whom had been tried for his life on the charge of murdering the other, met unexpectedly at a hotel in this city last night. They are Edward S. Van Lieu of this city and Cornelius Van Lieu of Pasadena, Cal. The meeting cleared up a mystery of long standing and relieved one of the brothers of a shadow which has rested upon him for years.
Twenty years ago the brothers quarreled in a tavern in Waco, N. Y. After the quarrel Edward returned to his home at Vernon Center, resolved never to recognize his brother again. Cornelius made a like resolution, and, having no family, determined to go West and forget. He left without seeing any members of his family or his friends and without giving them any idea of his plans.
The next day after the departure of Cornelius a search began. The search was in vain and it was rumored that Cornelius had been struck by his brother and carried away. Edward was afterward tried in the courts of Onondaga county, but set up a claim of self-defense and the jury disagreed. A second trial followed and he was discharged.
Five years ago Edward came West and located at Grand Rapids. Last night he went to a hotel to meet a friend on business. While there a stranger accosted him with the question: "Is this Eddie Van Lieu?"
"It is," was the reply.
Inside of a few minutes a dispatch was sent to the aged mother in New York and another one to the Onondaga county authorities informing them of a happy reunion. The brothers have decided to return to the old home at once to show conclusively that Cornelius still lives.
Heavy Court Costs.
Sheriff Phillips this morning received a fee bill for $726.99 from John Able and another one to the Onondaga county authorities informing them of a happy reunion. The brothers have decided to return to the old home at once to show conclusively that Cornelius still lives.

WHEN USING
An ordinary limited-view camera, how many times you want to get into your picture just a little more than your camera will get on the plate. It may be an object that will make the view more artistic, or perhaps is something that is really necessary to make the picture complete, but YOU WANT IT. If you place your camera farther back, you then reduce the size of the objects in your picture; besides, the difference in the point of view changes the whole picture. If you use a wide-angle lens you will get more in your picture, but the whole picture is changed by the violent perspective of the wide-angle of the lens. YOU HAVEN'T GOT WHAT YOU WANT.
If you get a larger camera, you merely get the same scene larger in size, but no larger in scope, and you have the expense of larger camera, larger plates, and extra weight to lug around.
There is a camera which will not only take the ordinary size of picture, but if you want to get more view on the sides (not more blank sky and out-of-focus foreground) you can make the photograph (the original one being 5x4) either 5x6, or 5x8, 5x10 or 5x12, and this camera, the only one which will do it, is the
AL-VISTA PANORAMIC CAMERA
The swinging and revolving lens does it—you press the button, and in an instant it records everything within its sweep of nearly 180 degrees—half a circle. If you owned a regular 10x12 camera, think of what you could save if, instead of using a full 15x12 plate every time, you could use only so much of a plate as you had need of for each individual picture, and could use the remainder for other views. That is just what you can do with an "AL-VISTA."
Suppose you had a Model "5-B," which takes pictures 5 inches wide, by from 4 up to 12 inches long; the exposures on your roll of film might be first 5x4, then 5x12, then 5x8, then 5x4, and so on, depending upon the length of each view you happened to want to take.
How often you find yourself on some high place, with a view just in front of you that would not be at all interesting as an ordinary camera would take it, but the whole sweep of which would make a delightful picture; you long for a camera which will record the whole. Prevent these chances of disappointment—these chances of taking views which none of your friends will have anything to equal—by getting an "AL-VISTA" Panoramic Camera.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.
"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured.
